

Build Green with A-Value™

Good for the Earth, good for business.

In the home construction business, "building green" is the topic of the day. A "green" builder constructs homes that are less wasteful, have less environmental impact and are less expensive to maintain. Committing to green building not only makes sense for a sustainable future, but also makes sense for sustainable profits. Green building is a great way to differentiate yourself from the others and a way to make your homes stand out among the rest. AVID can help you build green with unique specialty packages that may be applied to any design.

A-Value™

The A-Value Specialty Package saves builders time and material costs by analyzing the size and placement of every major construction component. A-Value plans qualify for green construction points or credits in many of the green building programs.

Green checklists

AVID can help you wade through the number of programs and regulations governing green building. AVID has developed house plans that meet or exceed the requirements for NAHB's Green Building Certification Program, Earthcraft House and the LEED Green Building Rating Systems.
